Purpose

This document establishes procedures for the appropriate use of computer systems, telephone systems, networks, data, computer programs and other information technology resources by students, faculty and staff at the College of Central Florida.

User Responsibilities

Users are expected to use computer and network resources in a responsible manner. Users should take appropriate precautions to ensure the security of their passwords and prevent others from obtaining access to their computer resources. Convenience of file or printer sharing is not a sufficient reason for sharing computer accounts.

Users may not encroach on others' use of computer resources. Such actions include, but are not limited to, overloading computer resources with trivial applications or excessive game playing, sending frivolous or excessive messages including chain letters, junk mail, and other similar types of broadcast messages, downloading personal music and videos unrelated to specific educational purposes, or using excessive amounts of storage.

The following behaviors are prohibited while using College information technology resources, including computers and networks owned or operated by the College of Central Florida, or to which the College of Central Florida is connected:

- Modifying system or network facilities, or attempting to crash systems or networks;
- Using, duplicating or transmitting copyrighted material, without first obtaining the owner's permission, in any way that may reasonably be expected to constitute an infringement, or that exceeds the scope of a license, or violates other contracts;
- Tampering with software protections or restrictions placed on computer applications or files;
- Using College information technology resources for personal for-profit purposes;
- Installing unlicensed software on College computers;
- Sending messages that are malicious or that a reasonable person would find to be harassing. This includes vulgar, racist or obscene material;
- Sending or disseminating any College data or information that would be considered sensitive or confidential, unless it is specifically required by a State or Federal governmental body;
- Subverting restrictions associated with computer accounts;
- Using information technology resources to obtain unauthorized access to records, data, and other forms of information owned, used, possessed by, or pertaining to the College or individuals;
- Accessing another person's computer account without permission. Users may not supply false or misleading data, or improperly obtain another's password to gain access to computers or network systems, data or information. Obtaining access to an account name or password through the negligence or naiveté of another is considered to be a specifically prohibited use;

Intentionally introducing computer viruses, Trojan Horses, or other rogue programs into information technology resources that belong to, are licensed to, or are leased by the College of Central Florida or others;
 Physically damaging information technology resources;
 Using, or encouraging others to use, information technology resources in any manner that would violate this or other College policies or any applicable state or federal law;
 Falsely reporting or accusing another of conduct that violates this policy, without a good faith basis for such an accusation; and,
 Releasing any information stored in college systems to others outside of the college except where specifically authorized to do so.

Users should remember that information distributed through the College's information technology resources might be considered a form of publication. Although the College of Central Florida does not take responsibility for material issued by individuals, users must recognize that third parties may perceive anything generated at the College of Central Florida as in some manner having been produced under the College of Central Florida auspices. Accordingly, users are reminded to exercise appropriate language, behavior, and style in their use of information technology resources.

Users must strictly adhere to software licensing agreements and copyright laws. All software licenses for software not centrally maintained by Information Technology must be on file in the department where the software is installed.

Procedure Administration

While respecting users' privacy to the fullest extent possible, the College reserves the right to examine any computer files. The College reserves this right for bona fide purposes including, but not limited to:

- Enforcing policies against harassment and threats to the safety of individuals;
- Protecting against or limiting damage to College information technology resources;
- Complying with a court order, subpoena or other legally enforceable discovery request;
- Investigating and preventing the posting of proprietary software or electronic copies of texts, data, media, or images in disregard of copyright, licenses, privacy, or other contractual or legal obligations or in violation of law;
- Safeguarding the integrity of computers, networks, software and data;
- Upgrading or maintaining information technology resources;
- Protecting the College or its employees and representatives against liability or other potentially adverse consequences.

Misuse of computing, networking, or information resources may result in the loss of computing and/or network access. Additionally, misuse can be prosecuted under applicable statutes. Users may be held accountable for their conduct under any applicable College or campus policies, or procedures. Illegal production of software and other intellectual property protected by U.S. copyright law is subject to civil damages and criminal punishment including fines and imprisonment.

Minor infractions of this policy, when accidental, such as consuming excessive resources or overloading computer systems, are generally resolved informally by the unit administering the accounts or network. This may be done through electronic mail or in-person discussions and education.

Repeated minor infractions or misconduct that is more serious may result in the temporary or permanent loss of computer access privileges or the modification of those privileges. More serious violations include, but are not limited to unauthorized use of computer resources, attempts to steal passwords or data, unauthorized use for copying of licensed software, repeated harassment, and threatening behavior, may result in termination of employment if the user is an employee or referral to an administrator for appropriate disciplinary action if the user is a student.

Violations will normally be handled through the College’s disciplinary procedures applicable to the relevant user. For example, students will be investigated and penalties or discipline imposed consistent with the procedures described in college policy and the Student Code of Conduct. However, the College may deny or restrict access to resources prior to the initiation or completion of such procedures when it reasonably appears necessary to do so to protect the integrity, security, or functionality of the resources or to protect the College from liability. The College may also refer suspected violations of law to appropriate law enforcement agencies.
