College of Central Florida Webber Gallery

HISTORY:

The Webber Gallery is located on the Ocala Campus of the College of Central Florida. The gallery hosts six to eight exhibits yearly, serves both the student body and the community and attracts an average of 8,500 annually.

Opened in 1985 with the gracious support of donors Frank M. and Gladys Webber, the gallery has hosted more than 100 exhibitions. It is a designated Smithsonian Traveling Exhibitions facility and hosts a combination of touring and curated exhibitions each year on a variety of subjects, including fine arts, history, and crafts. The gallery also provides a venue for student, faculty, and local artists to showcase their work, as well as arts education programs.

MISSION:

The Webber Gallery supports the college's dedication to the arts. The gallery exhibits and programs enhance CF curriculum and initiatives, as well as those which engage and inform the public.
